True, Fake, or Conspiracy Theory

How to Play

1. Contestants are split into teams
2. An article, video or photo is shown to the contestants.
3. Teams will decide whether the article is True, Fake or a Conspiracy Theory. Teams can also conclude "Need More Information/Can't Agree" if unsure. Individuals can also record their own answers.
 - True = factually correct and accurate
 - Fake = factually incorrect; author knows, or should have known, information not true
 - Conspiracy theory (CT) = intent unknown; difficult or impossible to definitively ascertain accuracy of claims
 - Need More Info = can't decide? No worries! Sometimes it's best to Google to make sure
4. During deliberations, teams can ask for the following clues from the game show host:
 - Author name
 - Author biography
 - Publication title
 - Publication "About Us" page
 - Source(s) cited
 - Spelling and/or grammatical errors
5. Scoring:
 - a. Each correct answer is worth 1 point.
 - b. Each incorrect answer is worth -1 points.
 - c. "Need more information" is worth 0 points.
